Every night, I have a dream. That I get free from being a slave. I don't know how, but I do. And then I fly away from this desert planet Tatooine. I go with a man with a dark cape. I can't see his face, but I can see blue eyes. He is Jedi, and I trust again I don't know why but I do. He takes to a planet that I have always wanted to go to. I train hard and for along time.

I have missed my mother so, even though it's a dream and she is just really just across the hallway from my room. Throughout the train I wonder how she is and how Watto is treating her. She has to hold out for a little longer. I finally have a plan. I am going to save my mother. I have all strength from being a Jedi. I save her.

Something is wrong. Something during all my dreams end badly. It's the most deep, darkest secret I have. It scares me. I remember fighting the blue eyed jedi that taught all there is to know. I don't know why I fight, but there is some hate towards him. Like he took something of mine. No someone. I fight on a lava pit. I start to fall after he pushes me. Then, right then I wake.
